Course Description

Think about your process to put together your monthly and quarterly reporting packages. If one number changes, do you have to manually update it in a number of other places? Is the review and feedback process a crazy mess, tracking progress of different resources across the company? Does it include a number of data sources: Financial Reporting documents, manual spreadsheets, emails and more?

Narrative Reporting can streamline your internal and external reporting services. During this training course, students will learn the principal techniques of Narrative Reporting and leave with hands on experience in administering and creating report packages and reports. You'll learn Narrative Reporting and its main reporting features. This course is tailored for new Narrative Reporting developers and administrators and is recommended for those members on a project team who will be actively developing and maintaining reporting environments.
